

Delta Community Living Society

RESOURCE DEVELOPMENT MANAGER

Delta, British Columbia

Are you looking for an exciting leadership role within the not-for-profit sector that's rewarding both personally and professionally?

Are you an experienced manager who is passionate about improving the quality of life of people with developmental disabilities?

Would you like to create opportunities for people with developmental disabilities to participate as contributing citizens of their community?

Delta Community Living Society (DCLS) (<http://www.dcls.ca>) is seeking an energetic, fun, and experienced individual for the part-time position of Resource Development Manager. This position is located in Delta, BC. DCLS is a community-focused not-for-profit organization that was established in 1963 to support individuals living with developmental disabilities and their families to improve their quality of life. DCLS provides the highest quality of support services through staffed residential, community inclusion, recreational, home sharing, and respite services.

The Resource Development Manager position requires a community-focused leader capable of increasing the visibility of DCLS services within the community through creating, strengthening, and sustaining strategic alliances and partnerships.

Reporting to the Executive Director, the Resource Development Manager is a member of the DCLS Management Team and is responsible for marketing, public relations, fund development, communication plans, and resource management. This part-time position is ideal for someone with creativity, passion, ambition, and entrepreneurial spirit.

The ideal candidate will have at least three years of fundraising experience and proven knowledge of current tax legislation in regards to charitable giving. Experience working within a not-for-profit environment is essential, as well as strong verbal communication and presentation skills.

DCLS takes pride in providing a flexible and family friendly work environment along with the benefits of on going professional development opportunities and knowing that the work undertaken by the organization makes a difference in the lives of many. DCLS offers a competitive salary and full benefits package.

Recruiting on behalf of DCLS, Meyers Norris Penny is currently accepting applications for the position of Resource Development Manager. Individuals interested in contributing within the community and to the long-term success of DCLS are encouraged to apply.

Please quote "DCLS-RDM" in the subject line of your email, and forward your resume and cover letter to: resumes.bcadvisory@mnp.ca. Please visit the DCLS website for a detailed description of the position at <http://www.dcls.ca/employment.htm>. We thank all applicants for their interest. However, only those selected for an interview will be contacted.